FOOD VALUE OF BANANAS.

Boy Are Not, Like Some Fruits, Good Only For Their Flavor. Professors of dietetics tell us that he banana is not, as many fruits are. a flavor and nothing more, but a food and a source of real nutriment. It is at once useful and delicious. It not only gratifies the palate, but supplies mulerial for combustion and the maintenance of animal heat, while it also builds up the muscles and regalrs the ween and threadbure nerves.

The flour made from it in its dried state is equal in nutritive value to rice. Dried and sprinkled with sugar, a banana is, weight for weight, as nutritions as the venerable fig.

DIPLOMACY

A Polito Business Very Much Like the Practice of Law.

Diplomacy is a matter of business though a polite business, hedged about by etiquette and forms and adorned with a few frills. Get behind the lingerie and the lingo and go to the heart of the thing and you will find it very much like the practice of law, The man with the best case ought to win, and when he doesn't and the man with the poorer case does win it is because he is the better man and known better how to present his case and how to handle it. There is another popular notion that the American diplomatic establishment is weak because our representatives abroad contend with men trained all their lives in the diplomatic school. We have no permanent diplomatic establishment. Our ambassadors and ministers abroad are picked from law offices, editorial rooms and even counting rooms, Usually they have had no previous acquaintance with diplomatic work. Yet nine times out of ten they are more than a match for the men they have to deal a list of what you offer for sale. 2142m with abroad. Breadth and strength of character, knowledge of human nature and experience gained in the rough and tumble of life count for quite as much as the other fellows' dilettante culture. The Spread of Banking. The Bank of England was estabthe human companionship. As sixes, and because of the fertility of trade in the provinces increased, subthe pasturage and the care taken in stantial men began to feel the inconhele heep they are capable of giving venience of being their own bankers and retaining all their wealth in their oaken chests. Gradually they began LOW to open accounts with some of the London bankers, which they utilized for their business transactions. Doubtless such men were beset by many friends and customers to accommodate them through their banking account, and thus the well to do trader developed into the country banker with his London agent, who much preferred to do business and incur carriags and postage with some one leading firm in a town to having several small customers in the same place,--London Standard.
